How we choose the shelf

1/10/26

A man with glasses and a beard, wearing a green sweater, is sitting at a wooden desk in a library or bookstore. He is reading an open book. The desk is cluttered with stacks of books, a pen holder, and a small plant. In the background, there are tall bookshelves filled with books. Two brass desk lamps are on the desk, one on each side of the man.

Every book in the shop was read by at least one of us before it was ordered. Not the blurb, not the reviews, the book. If two of us disagree, it stays, because those tend to be the books people remember.

The shelf is short on purpose. A short shelf you can trust beats a long one you have to search.
