Scan ID #162
WCAG Level AA
Status complete
Completed Sep 18, 2026, 5:38:20 PM

Summary

Total	Critical	Serious	Moderate	Minor	Needs Review
0	0	0	0	0	10

No automatically detectable violations were found. Automated checks cover only part of WCAG, so manual testing with a keyboard and a screen reader is still recommended.

axe-core could not automatically evaluate 10 check(s) (for example, color contrast over an image). Review them manually.

Mobile Screenshot

This report was generated with automated checks (axe-core), which detect only a subset of WCAG success criteria. A report with no violations does not guarantee conformance; manual testing with a keyboard and a screen reader is still required.

Our story

From a workbench

Voltline began as a repair bench in a shared workshop. Customers asked what we would buy. We told them, then we started selling it.

Every product on the shelf is measured on our bench. Headphones get a frequency response. Chargers get a thermal test. Laptops get a week of real work.

The bench is still here. If a product fails our tests, it does not go on the shelf. If it fails yours, we take it back.

A vertical strip of 15 product images from the Voltline app. The images are arranged in a single column, each showing a different smart home device. The devices include smart locks, cameras, sensors, and other IoT products. Each image is accompanied by a small text label and a set of five colored dots (red, yellow, green, blue, purple) indicating a rating or status. The background of the strip is dark, and the images are presented in a clean, minimalist style.

How we measure headphones

1/10/26

Every headphone goes on a measurement rig before it goes on the shelf. We record the frequency response from 20 Hz to 20 kHz and compare it to a target that most listeners describe as neutral.

The chart is published on the product page. A bump at 100 Hz means warm bass. A dip at 3 kHz means voices sit back. You choose, with the chart in front of you.
